Learning to Be a Leatherman: A Rite of Passage (TBM Books, July 2022) by Roderick W. Correll

Learning to Be a Leatherman begins as a coming-of-age story focused on a voyage the author took overseas to Europe when he was seventeen years old. Arranged by his father, this trip was meant to teach him how to tan leather, to participate in the business his grandfather founded, and, by design or inadvertently, to spread his wings. The book explores his relationship with his father and the world of work his dad carved out for him.

Roderick W. Correll

FFI Fellow

Roderick W. Correll, FFI Fellow, was a leatherman, a third-generation leader of a family business, a consultant to family businesses, and a founder of the Family Firm Institute. He succeeded Barbara Hollander as FFI's executive director.
